KAREN FOLEY: On the 1st of December from 1:00 until 3:00 the Open University Business School welcome you to a Student Hub live event. We'll be having a live interactive roundtable discussion that will be broadcast online for you, the audience, to participate in.

It's called Globalisation Technology in Business and Society. So join me as I talk to Professor Mark Fenton-O'Creevy, Dr. Devendra Kodwani, and Dr. Peter Bloom from the Open University Business School who will be joined by Ian Wairua, doctoral fellow at Strathmore University Nairobi and Professor Wilfred Manuela from Asian Institute of Management, Philippines about the global issues facing businesses.

The discussion will consider local culture, economic and political and social institutions, technological infrastructure, and how this can also affect the student learning perspective for management training in an international market.

Registrations are now open, so please reserve your place at the event. We'll then send you the event details and provide easy access to log on.

You can see the full programme on the Student Hub website. And if you can't attend the event live, the catch-up will be available there shortly afterwards.

Everyone is welcome to attend, in particular Open University students, alumni, and business colleagues who have an interest in international business development.

I hope you can join us on the 1st of December from 1:00 until 3:00.
